

Vandal Acts, Thefts Hurt the Library

by Gary Morris

One of the "last of the free lending agencies" is experiencing a great amount of shoplifting and is continually plagued by theft and vandalism.

Head Librarian Dr. John Christ of the Gene Eppley Library admitted that the problem is nothing new but labeled it as "extremely critical."

Serious Situation

He mentioned cost as an important factor, but said that scarcity is the primary reason behind the seriousness of the situation.

"Some things just can't be replaced," he said. "How can you replace a valuable book with a chapter or two torn out, which is not uncommon at all?"

The ability of the library to replace materials has been curtailed, Christ said, due to the tremendous rises in publishing costs in recent years. He said the average book now costs over $10.

"Our business is to create availability to as much material as possible," he said. "People who abuse library privileges are only hurting themselves. Someone who keeps a book overdue might someday be met with an empty space on the shelf when he needs research materials."

Fines No Answer

Christ said fines aren't really the answer because they generally can't make any profit from them anyway.

"By the time we send two or three overdue notices through the mail we're lucky to come out even," he said.

He continued in saying that he personally dislikes the whole idea of fines. "We're not here to fine anybody, we just want to get the books back."

Christ remarked that the circumstances indicate a serious "behavioral-value problem." The librarian said, "People fail to recognize the

Roskens Speaks to SGA Leaders

Chancellor Ronald Roskens told a small turnout at student government's workshop Saturday that communication in the University, both formal and informal, is of prime importance.

"We would like to establish an atmosphere that would encourage quick and open candor in communication," the Chancellor said. "And although we do not always agree, that should not preclude discussion."

Roskens also said in his informal talk that what should be of prime concern in the University is what is encountered in the classroom and the laboratory.

"The extracurricular things are important," he said, "but what we really want is to say that when we have a bachelors degree from UNO we have had a first-rate education."

Student President Finds Promises Hard to Fill

by Dick Ulmer

After completing almost half his term in office, Student Body President Dave Parker admits that some of the things he promised in last spring's elections have not yet been accomplished.

He explained, "It's hard for a guy who's outside of student government to really address the issues in an informed manner. I found, after I was elected, a lot of things that are, at this point in time, not going to be solved."

Publicized Platform

During the campaign, Parker and his running mate Kristin Grady publicized a platform which made statements about issues which ranged from legal aid to veterans' affairs.

One of its thickest planks was one concerning student services. It stated, in part, "Student Government can remain effective only as long as it has a means to remain financially independent and is free to determine its own fiscal policy."

Laws Prohibit Control

Parker now says, "After reading the laws we found that there's not a whole lot we can do about getting control of student fees." He doesn't feel the laws can be changed "because this state is too conservative". But he also commented, "Generally speaking, we do what we want with the fees anyway."

Other planks in the Parker/Grady platform were:

1) Consumers' Cooperative — a program which Parker says Rusty Schwartz is working on, but "is still in the rough stages".

2) Legal Services — The president's platform read, "We believe that a program providing free legal counseling to students at our university should be established." Parker now says that after talking with UNO's Ombudsman, Frank Forbes, he isn't "so sure" about the idea.

He "will be watching" the legal service recently begun at UNL. "I'd like to see how much they actually use that guy," Parker said.

3) Housing — The platform promised to "conduct a feasibility study into the possibility of cooperative housing in the UNO area".

Study In Progress

Parker says a study is being made by N. P. Dodge, but added, "It would be great to have housing but you have to have money to do that."

4) Food Service — Parker's Platform "recommended that bids be let to independent food service outlets to operate the university's program". This has not been done.

However, Parker feels that the boycott of food service, which he helped conduct last spring, "had worthwhile effects". He added, "Dr. Beer (Vice-chancellor Ronald Beer) has assured us that the food service is running on a break-even basis."

5) Health Service — The platform stated, "Student Health Service should be alleviated (sic) beyond its current level which centers around the issuance of aspirin and band-aids."

Parker agrees that health service has yet to be elevated; but added, "The administration has come up with a proposal which has a whole lot of benefits in it for students."

Downtown Move Effects Expansion

UNO's westward movement may be effected by a proposed downtown campus, according to Dr. Rex Engebretson the Chancellor's Assistant for Planning.

The University has been planning on extending its boundaries as far west as 69th Street, but Engebretson said, "This downtown proposal would certainly effect our westward expansion."

However, Engebretson also noted that UNO will be making some acquisitions to the west "within the next six months". He would not speculate on exactly how much of an effect the downtown construction would have.

The downtown campus received publicity last week, when a front-page article in the World-Herald outlined efforts to construct it as part of the Riverfront Development. One mysterious citizen has supposedly offered to contribute from $2 million to $2.5 million for the downtown campus.

Engebretson said that the illustrations accompanying the story were "only conceptualized drawings", but added, "Within the next 30 days we could see the first step in making it reality."

If constructed, the downtown campus would offer classes from "the total gamut of the University structure", said Engebretson. It would be part of UNO's move to "take the University to where the people are". The planner also said, "We would avoid split class schedules at all costs."

Whether UNO continues its move to the west, goes downtown or both, Engebretson feels that many more buildings are needed to "correct the sad situation around here". He said, "Even if we don't gain another student, building should

Senate Selects Four Officers

Three veterans and a newcomer have been elected to officer positions by the Student Senate.

Education senator Jim Nicas was elected Speaker by the body Thursday evening. A member of the Young Republicans, Nicas has been active in UNO student government for quite some time. He served for a year on the Parking Appeals Board and was elected to the Senate last spring.

Debbie Magee was retained as Secretary of the Senate and Dan Haley was elected Parliamentarian.

The newcomer is Maverick football player Johnny Harrison, who was selected Sergeant-at-Arms. An ex-Marine, Harrison told the Senate, "I'm sure I can handle the job."

Increase twice and parking should triple."

He feels, "It's a credit to the students and faculty that they do such a good job under such conditions." Engebretson related an incident where there were so many instructors in a single office that "one of them had to stand for the door to close".

He concluded, "I hope we never lose the rattle of jackhammers and caterpillars."

BLAC Funds Turned Down

A request for funds by Black Liberators for Action on Campus (BLAC) was narrowly rejected by the Student Senate Thursday evening.

The $350 was to be used for a BLAC retreat to be held during the winter break. BLAC's secretary, Louise Latimer, presented the proposal. She said the retreat is needed "because it's hard to get people together during school".

Memories an Influence

Memories of their own ill-fated retreat apparently influenced the voting of some senators. Arts and Sciences representative Dan Haley said, "BLAC may be deserving, but I can't see funds being spent on it. This type of thing is getting out of hand." He added, "I'd hate to see something like another student government retreat."

Student Body Vice-president Kristin Grady also opposed the expenditure, saying, "Other organizations will want the same treatment."

Past Allocations Made

Providing vocal support for the move were senators Colleen Gregory and Stan Vanoy. Gregory noted, "Student government has, in fact, allocated money to special interest groups in the past."

Vanoy, pointing out that the Senate had given $700 to the Women's Resources Center the week before, proposed that BLAC be given an "annual budget".

Two-Thirds Needed

After several unsuccessful moves to cut off debate on the issue, a vote was taken. Fifteen senators were for the proposal, while eight and Grady were opposed (there was one abstention). Since a two-thirds majority is needed to approve any student government budget request, the proposal had failed.

Following the vote, Louise Latimer said, "I didn't expect it to pass because of the Senate retreat." But she vowed to "keep on pushing."

Letters Policy

The Gateway urges all readers to express their viewpoints on any issue by submitting letters to this paper. The Gateway requires that all letters to be printed be signed with name, address and/or University department. The Gateway may withhold the names from some printed letters in a few very rare circumstances when a person's employment or scholastic status might be damaged.

A Fairy Tale

Gateway:

Once upon a time the earth was populated only by gentle lambs. The lambs came together and built a great University, where they could pursue excellence, dignity, and honor. One day the lambs felt that life was losing its meaning, so they made a man and called him Lord.

They gave this Lord great power over University affairs, and they even put their Lord in charge of a great sum of money. This money was collected from all the lambs, who put trust in their Lord to spend it wisely for them.

The Lord became a proud man, though, and he soon became accustomed to a life of fine earthly comforts. So, while the students were becoming very poor giving up their fortunes to support intellectual excellence, their Lord was spending their money on expensive china, fine silver, and a van to carry food from the lambs' cafeteria to the Lord's house.

Distressed by the arrogance of their Lord, the lambs asked him why he spent their money in such a manner. The Lord thundered his reply, "If you pitiful fools cannot see that a great University is built on expensive parties to impress the true aristocrats and masters of your miserable lives, then don't expect me to listen to any more of your childish stupidity."

The lambs did nothing more and the world soon became a place where gifted idols, called Lords, ate all the innocent lambs on plates of fine china.

Jim Prucha

To 'Mickey'

Dear Gateway,

This letter is in response to Michael Witter's letter "Mickey Mouse" (Oct. 17).

I agree with you that perhaps the election was rather hastily made and there were some short-comings. The lack of a complete campaign, time, most of all, money, are only a small part of the reason why only 10 per cent of the student body came out to vote.

I decided to help the election and most of all, to meet some of these student candidates and I think that they're a wonderful group of people.

I worked at the election polls for several hours and the student attitudes ranged from "I don't care", "I don't want to vote", "Nah" to "Yes, I want to vote".

Quote, from your poisonous letter, "... It's going to have to try to reach the students and communicate." I think we should at the very least, give maximum credit to all student candidates who took their own initiative, time, money and effort to try and communicate with 10,000 students who attend UNO.

Now, what have you done to communicate? Did you try to find out who these people are? Did you try to get out, find them, and really talk to them? How well did you listen?

Or, as everybody can guess by now, you most likely sat on your excessively protruding adipose tissue and expected everything to be handed down to you on silver platter.

Construction Woes

Gateway,

That new office building that's going up is sure causing a mess. It takes an extra 10 minutes to get from the Library to Kayser (Hall) now.

Whose idea was it to build it there anyway? Seems to me UNO owns some property over on the west side of campus.

Next thing you know they'll be putting a building on the football field. Oops, better not give them any ideas.

By the way, didn't those construction guys see that "Keep off the Grass" sign?

About Flash

Dear Ronnie Roskens and Ronnie Beer:

Gentlemen, don't you think it's time you two did something about security on this campus? The "Exhibitionist" (alias, the "Flasher") is still at large and you two haven't made a move.

I think it's time you two went to your china closet and took out the sugar bowl. After all, that's where you hide the money. I think you could take this money to hire some more security guards. Hard telling what the jerk will do next — like start attacking the co-eds.

Right now, gentlemen, you have one strike against you; let's not make it two. Why do the females of this campus have to be sacrificed because of your lack of concern?

If your "china bowl" doesn't have the funds, why don't you dig into the parking fines fund? I think that has some money in it. Right now the only things protected on this campus are legally parked cars.

Northwest Missouri Wins Debate

Northwest Missouri State College won first place this weekend in the varsity division of UNO's Eighteenth Annual Kick-off Debate Tournament.

Kansas State took the top spot in the novice division while South Dakota University and UN-L placed second in the two divisions respectively.

UNO, as the host school, did not compete for team or individual trophies. However, Maverick teams did enter the competition and "did very well", according to the director of forensics at UNO, Duane Aschenbrenner.

Over 200 contestants from 30 schools in the Midwest competed in the tournament, Aschenbrenner said. The annual meet, sponsored by Pi Kappa Delta speech honorary and the UNO Speech Department, is one of the largest in the area.

The UNO debaters this weekend travel to Kearney State for a tournament.

What is it?

It is many things to many people. Primarily it is an organization of men with youthful vigor; with common goals and ideals; having a bond of friendship among them. Pi Kappa Phi is a personal thing; the loyalty and support of our members, whether they be undergraduates or alumni, young or old, have shown that men will join and work with a forward moving fraternity of which they can be proud.

If you would like more information about Pi Kappa Phi and our upcoming social activities, come to room 302 in the student center today or tomorrow or call 551-3672.

Bud Drinkers, can you figure this out?

Ralph bought a 6-pak of Budweiser and invited four friends over to share it. Since he bought, he expected to have two cans to himself, but unfortunately when he returned to the refrigerator for his second, he found it missing. So he asked who took it. Al said, "Joe drank it." Joe said, "Dan drank it." Dan said, "Joe, that's a lie!" And Bill said, "I didn't drink it." If only one of these statements is true, who really drank it?

ANSWER: If you assume Al is the guilty one, Dan's and Bill's statements are true. If you think it's Joe, then Al's and Dan's statements are true. Obviously if you think Dan did it, then Joe's and Bill's statements are true. Obviously if Ralph had bought five 6-paks, they could have spent more time drinking and less time arguing.

New Feminism Course for Men too

by Jim Beam

"The New Feminism," a Community Service course, is instructed by Virginia Walsh who is currently pursuing doctoral studies in English at UN-L. She is also a housewife, mother of seven children, and a member of many feminist organizations.

Walsh expressed her feelings on feminism: "It's important for men and women to be informed about the real issues involved in what will be extreme social change. If not, they will be acting in unintelligent and counterproductive ways."

She said that she doesn't want the course to end because it's been so exciting. She added that it is a very open group with great diversity in backgrounds. There is one fourteen-year-old girl, a great-grandmother, and one man in the group. However, no minority groups are represented.

She wouldn't say she was a conservative or a liberal in the women's liberation movement. But one thing that really makes her mad, she said, is to see a woman considered the "second sex" or inferior.

She said there isn't a hostile element toward men in the course, but they are concerned more with the "conscious extent women inhibit themselves toward men."

She said, "Men are not any more responsible than women in creating a privileged society." Reflecting on this she added that people are conditioned into attitudes at an early age with sex roles.

The purpose of the feminist course is to explore the cultural assumptions which influence the development of women, she said, and the nature of relationships between men and women.

In her experience with history books Walsh thinks it's difficult for both men and women to understand what was really accomplished by women. She feels that the general attitude presented in the books is of ridicule. When asked if she thought there was male domination of history books, she emphatically replied, "Yes, there's a lot of sexism in text books, pop culture, advertising ... everywhere." But now she feels there is a lot of good information out.

Walsh likes to talk about feminism in terms of an old wave of feminism beginning before the Civil War and ending with the onset of World War I; and "the new feminism" really being related to the first.

She said that the First World War also really hurt feminism earlier in this century because of the type of man that developed out of that war. The reason for the movement now, she said, is that "women's traditional roles are shrinking; and they are wondering which way to grow."

SGA Workshop

The Chancellor's address was the first event scheduled for the day-long workshop held in the Student Center. Student government officers planned the day to acquaint new student senators, the deans' advisory councils' new student members and student members of the new University committees with the workings of student government and the University.

In his talk the Chancellor emphasized his hope that the student members of the University committees would take their jobs seriously. He pointed out that some faculty members are skeptical about students on the committees.

Ironically, very few of the student committee members were present at the workshop. The best turnout came from the newly-elected senators, most staying the entire day.

Other speakers at the workshop were Vice-chancellor Ronald Beer and Assistant Vice-chancellor Elaine Hess.

importance of the availability of sources."

He labeled the entire situation as a reflection of attitude. "People just no longer care about doing their part to return the materials," he said. "We mustn't forget that one hand still washes the other."

Not Security Alone

No amount of security, he continued, will completely dissolve either theft or vandalism. "We can't catch every book thief and we can't go through every piece of material to check for damage. It's only my place to bring it to people's awareness," he said.

Parker

6) Veterans Affairs — Last spring Parker called for a "full-time Veterans' Affairs Office." The then-candidate's platform said the responsibility for funding it "falls clearly on the shoulders of the administration."

Aid Unavailable

Such an office has yet to be established because, according to Parker, the administration couldn't get aid from the federal government. He praised the part-time, student government funded veterans office which is currently operating.

7) Parking — In the section of Parker's platform on parking, he stated, "We will discontinue the practice of student funds being utilized through tickets and fees to provide maintenance on faculty/staff parking lots."

The practice has continued, Parker explained, "My philosophy is that you don't object to things just to oppose them — you have to have alternative solutions." He continued, "it's not appropriate that fringe benefits be taken away from faculty."

8) Minority Relations — The platform said, "It is not enough to address minorities at election time, but daily efforts should be made to insure participation by all students in all facets of government." Parker says, "We've always tried to involve minorities, and I think we've done that pretty well."

9) Day Care Center — Parker's platform said, "This administration will work for the establishment of day care centers for use by children of UNO students."

Several day care centers have been established primarily for this purpose, and Parker says his administration has "indirectly helped".

Academic Programming Needed

The platform also raised some points about academic programming. It promised to work for more student input — a goal which Parker thinks has been accomplished by the rebuilding of the Deans' Advisory Councils.

It pledged to "encourage" the initiation of a system which would allow students to take classes during the winter break. Parker said, "We haven't done anything on that."

The platform asked for more "pass/fail grading procedures." Parker says he has discussed this with Vice-chancellors Beer and Gaines.

It promised to work to upgrade the academic standing of some academic programs. Parker said, "The University is doing that, we haven't done anything directly."

The candidate's platform also called for the immediate elimination of the 48-hour rule. "This has been accomplished," according to Parker.

Relations Plank Important

A part of his platform which Parker considers "one of the most important", is the section dealing with student/administration relations. It read, "Let us reverse the anti-administration sentiment on this campus by replacing mutual distrust with mutual respect."

The president feels, "We have accomplished a great deal of that."

He continued, "A lot of people in student government and on the Gateway feel that we should oppose, rather than work within the system. I disagree with them. Basically, we should all work together for the long-range good of the University — I just don't like to see opposition for opposition's sake."

Lobby Fights for Aid Funding

The National Student Lobby recently announced support for a veto override of a bill to continue funding for student financial aid for the next year.

Layton Olson, Executive Director of the National Student Lobby, stated, "Unless Congress overrides the veto, which veto is expected in early to mid-October, student financial aid in grants and in state scholarship programs will be slashed by approximately $435 million for the school year beginning next fall."

Slash Could Raise Tuition

"The slash in student financial aid will not only make it difficult for thousands of students to return to college, but it will also mean a deficit for many colleges which will be passed on to students in higher tuition and fees next fall."

Covers Three Programs

Both the House as a whole and the Senate Appropriations Labor-HEW Subcommittee have passed Labor, Health, Education and Welfare Appropriations providing $1.2 and $1.8 billion more than the President wants to spend. The bill includes funding for the National Direct Student Loan Program ($293 million in 3 percent interest loans made by colleges) and Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants ($210 million) — three programs the Administration is attempting to terminate. A presidential veto is expected based on Administration policy stated this September.

Big Vote for Students

"This is the biggest vote of the year for students," added Jeff Banchemo, Education Director for the National Student Lobby, "because it hits every student in the pocketbook and strikes at promises of both political parties that students not be denied access to a college education for financial reasons. Both middle income students and low income students are being priced out of the education market by sky-rocketing tuition and fees, and at the same time, by reduction of graduate and undergraduate student financial aid."

In a closely related matter, Banchemo said the National Student Lobby is demanding Congressional changes in the Federal Guaranteed Student Bank Loan Program, which is in a state of crisis with a 40 percent decrease in bank loans to students this fall over fall 1972. "Many students did not make it back to school this fall because of the unnecessary imposition of a complicated 'needs test' which is making it very difficult for students from families with incomes from $11,000 to $15,000 per year to get a bank loan," said Banchemo.

NSL Joins Coalition

The National Student Lobby is joining with the Washington based coalition of education association's Committee for Full Funding of Education programs, and the Coalition on Human Needs in the veto override effort to obtain funds for many domestic programs. A similar veto override effort was successful in 1971, however a veto override effort in education failed last year. There have been two close votes this fall in the House on veto override efforts. The Emergency Medical Services Act override failed by 5 votes; the minimum wage override failed by 23 votes. This time, the coalition opposing the veto is much broader. Success is possible.

The main effort will be focused on the House of Representatives, which has been the key to veto override attempts. The focus will be on the following key Congressmen, who, although they voted for the final passage of the labor-HEW appropriation, also voted for an unsuccessful attempt to cut $600 million from the Appropriation on the House floor. (The measure was sponsored by Congressman Michel, R-Illinois.)

A personal letter from individuals and student groups that describes the particular crisis in student financial aid in a student's family or at your institution is the most effective lobbying possible. "Specific data from your student financial aid office should be included in your letter, if possible," said Olson.

New 'Groove Tube' Offers Students TV Alternative

by Dick Ulmer

UNO students have the opportunity this week to see a couple of television shows that will never make it with the networks.

"Groove Tube" and a concert featuring Loggins and Messina are the first two attractions in a series of video shows being presented by the Electric Window and sponsored by SPO.

Window Signed Contract

According to Electric Window director Mike Braunstein, SPO has signed a contract with the Video Tape Network (VTN), to provide the tapes. They will be shown throughout the week on closed-circuit monitors in six student center locations.

Braunstein revealed that some of the programs in the VTN series feature "uninhibited college humor."

Example for Future

If "Groove Tube" is a viable example of what lies ahead, students bored with "normal" TV are in for a change. Produced by New Yorker Ken Shapiro, "Tube" is a collection of satirical bits on television commercials and American life in general.

Featured are a tap dancing businessman, a horny movie-goer, the American housewife, a barbershop duet, a talking penis and many others.

One scene is a parody on ABC's Wide World of Sports where "Groove Tube" makes a visit to the "Annual Sex Olympics" in Tijuana, Mexico.

Second Feature Concert

1974 First Year for European Commencement

The first graduates of the University of Nebraska at Omaha European Studies program will be granted degrees during formal commencement exercises in May of 1974 in Wiesbaden, Germany.

Planning already has started for the ceremonies which will be unique in UNO history. For the first time at a UNO commencement, the degree recipients will be people who have never been to the UNO campus.

The graduates-to-be are military personnel who have enrolled in courses offered by UNO at U.S. Air Force bases in Europe. The program was developed to help men and women in the armed forces who want to obtain university degrees but find it difficult because military duty assignments and rather inflexible academic schedules often make completion of a degree impossible.

The UNO European Studies program was started in 1972 with courses in Torrejon, Spain, and Wiesbaden and Rhein-Main, Germany. This fall the program was expanded from three to seven basis, with additional courses offered at Lakenheath, Mildengall and Bentwaters, England, and Ramstein, Germany.

Carol Furry, UNO administrative assistant, recently returned from conferences with base education officers in Germany and England. She said about 200 students now are enrolled in the European Studies program, and pointed out that increased enrollment is expected with expansion of course offerings.

Courses are offered leading to two undergraduate degrees — the bachelor of science with a major in urban studies and the bachelor of general studies — and the master of science degree with an area major in urban studies. In addition, a 15 hour certificate is offered in urban/ethnic studies.

Furry pointed out that many students find the courses, particularly those in metropolitan planning and urban development, to be "great help" in keeping touch with the states. She also stressed that the program is particularly relevant to all who wish to gain a broad understanding of the problems and dynamics of urbanization, and racial and social change, and the significance of these in today's society.

About 70 per cent of the students in the European Studies program are undergraduates, and about 35 per cent are seeking the bachelor of general studies degree.

Tuition and fees for the program are $30 per credit for undergraduates and $48.25 per credit hour for graduate students. All European Studies students must apply for admission to UNO. Credits earned in the program are treated identical to credits earned on the main campus.

Coaching of Women's Sports Is Focus of Denver Conference

by Dave Smedley

Connie Claussen, women's athletic director at UNO, recently returned from a conference in Denver that dealt with the coaching of women's sports.

According to Claussen, the conference, which was sponsored by the Division of Girls and Women's Sports, was attended by 430 people. This was far above what was expected.

Although the conference was open to both male and female, Claussen said that most of the people there were women high school and college coaches and teachers.

Claussen said that the conference lasted from Friday, Oct. 12, through Sunday, Oct. 14. She said it consisted of speeches and three different clinics dealing with gymnastics, basketball and track and field.

One of the speakers at the conference, according to Claussen, was Patsy Neal, a three time all-American in basketball and an author of three textbooks. She gave a speech entitled, "To Be or to Boo" and as Claussen put it, "The speech emphasized how today, sportsmanship is being lost in athletic competition; that you must win at any cost and that crowd reaction is getting more violent."

According to Claussen, Neal pointed out that competitors are currently headed in the direction of believing that it is no longer a question of how you play the game but whether you win, that counts.

Neal urged those present to try and keep these attitudes from permeating women's athletics.

Claussen said that Neal made mention in her speech to the way crowds sometimes react to the calls made by officials. Neal feels it is ridiculous that referees have to be escorted off the court after a game is over.

In reflecting on what Neal said at the conference, Claussen feels that the way a coach handles herself, say at a basketball game, can have an effect on the way the referee, the crowd and the players behave. She said that screaming at an official because of a particular call would only serve as incitement to the players and the crowd. She said, "There is a correct time and a correct way to approach an official without causing a big scene."

Claussen was originally scheduled to go the conference with Sonia Green, UNO's women's basketball coach, but Green was unable to attend due to illness in her family. Claussen attended the basketball clinics while she was at the conference. She had originally planned on getting to all of the clinics, but she stayed with the basketball clinic all the way through. Claussen said that with Green unable to attend the conference, she felt obliged to sit in on the basketball sessions. Another contributing factor was that "the basketball clinic was so interesting that I stayed with it because each session built on the one prior to it."

Claussen is looking forward to other conferences similar to this one. She said, "I'm sure, because of attendance, that they'll have more conferences touching on other areas, like volleyball."

FLAG FOOTBALL

In flag football competition, the Pikes (6-0) and the Patriots (5-1) are on top of their divisions in the "A" competition, while the Shooting Rocks (4-1) have a half game lead over the Buds (3-1), with the Aces (2-1) a close third in the "B" league. This past week saw the Patriots edge out their closest competition, the Collegiate Vets, 9-6, while the Pikes had no trouble in beating the Wreckin' Crew 24-0, in a game marred by several unsportsmanlike incidents.

This week's schedule finds the Shooting Rocks playing the Aces in a key "B" game this afternoon at 4:30, while on Friday the big game should be the 3:30 encounter between the Collegiate Vets and Lambda Chi.

In the scoring race, Mike Moore of the Pikes has the lead with 33 points. Lee Wortman, Lambda Chi, is second with 30 points followed by Pat Lacey, Bookworms, and Ron Grasso, Pikes, with 24 points; and Don Blotzer, Bookworms, 21 points.

CROSS-COUNTRY RELAY

The annual intramural cross-country relay was held last week and the "Jarheads" team of Bob Garcia, Jerry Cronin, Ray Smith and Mike McCormick emerged the winner in the three team field. The Jarheads toured the four mile course at Elmwood Park in 20 minutes 34 seconds. The Roadrunners were second (20:49) and Lambda Chi third (22:11).

SOCCER

Although no official game was played last week, the soccer program did get underway on the new astro-turf field. Over 30 athletes participated in this, the first session, which included basic fundamentals of the game of soccer.

3 MAN BASKETBALL

Three man basketball got underway this week and will continue until the middle of November. Intramural Director Bert Kurth will then hold a single elimination tournament on November 19 for the winners of each week's games.

Indians Scalp Mavericks; Penalties Deciding Factor

by Dave Coulton

Underdog Southern Colorado State College ended UNO's winning streak at four games, Saturday afternoon, with the final score, 32-28.

UNO Coach Al Caniglia had warned before the game that the Indians would be keyed up for the game. It was Homecoming, Band, Pom-Pom and Elks Day.

Southern Colorado quarterback Jim Nelson, completed 15 of 24 passes for 263 yards, setting a school record. Nelson came into the game with only a 30 per cent completion average but passed at will against the Mavericks.

Plenty of time

Nelson's passing helped open up the Indian's ground game. He found plenty of time to throw throughout the ball game. The UNO defenders only pressured him once.

That one rush by Larry Micheals produced the only theft of a Nelson pass. Ben LaFollette intercepted the pass in the end zone for the Mavericks.

Sixteen penalties were called. UNO was penalized nine times for 105 yards. The Indians had seven penalties for 35 yards.

UNO's passing wasn't very sharp as both Angelo Intile and Bob Bangtson combined for only six of 25 passes.

Saul Ravenell provided the brightest spot for the Mavericks. Ravenell accounted for most of the rushing with 140 of 184 yards on the ground for UNO. Fullback Johnnie Harrison had a good day hitting up the middle for gains of 20 and 24 yards.

The game got off to a slow start. Neither team was able to establish superiority in the opening quarter.

The second quarter lived up. The Indians took possession on the UNO 25 after a Ravenell fumble. Six plays later, Benny Williams broke loose on an 8-yard run for the first score.

An onslaught ensued that produced three touchdowns in 59 seconds.

UNO Scores

Steve Lindsay put UNO on the board 13 seconds later, taking the Indian kick-off 91 yards for the score. Frank Golwitzer's missed point-after allowed the Indians to stay on top.

It took Southern Colorado only two plays to widen its margin. Jim Nelson hit split-end Dan Connors in stride for a 71-yard touchdown pass, leaving the Mavericks down 14-6 with 10:54 in the half.

The Maverick defense set up the next UNO score. Ted Sledge forced Indian tailback Williams to fumble and Micheals recovered on the 28.

Five plays later Joe Sinkule caught an Intile pass in the end zone with 6:23 left in the half. Sinkule made the catch after Intile's 12-yard toss had been deflected by Southern Colorado cornerback Larry Gentry. Ravenell tied the score 14-14 with a two-point conversion run.

The upset-minded Indians quickly went to work, putting together a 66-yard drive to retake the lead 20-14 with 3:02 left in the half.

The Southern Colorado score came on some quick thinking by Randy Gloyd of the Indians. Gloyd took a Nelson pass to the UNO 3-yard line, where, after being hit by a Maverick defender, pitched to teammate Clyde Kenebrew, who took it in for the score.

Offsides

Southern Colorado almost put another score on the board before half time, when George Webster broke away on a punt return for a 97-yard run. The score was called back due to an offsides penalty.

UNO came back after half-time to put together an 80-yard drive. The third quarter drive followed LaFollette's interception.

Moving from the 20, Harrison burst through the middle on a draw play for 20 yards. A little later Ravenell continued the drive with a 40-yard run to Southern Colorado's 5-yard line. Ravenell went over from there for the touchdown. Golwitzer's conversion gave UNO its only lead, 21-20.

The Indians rallied in the final period. Wayne Harris, replacing Benny Williams, completed a 65-yard scoring drive with a 20-yard run. A try for two points failed, leaving the Indians a five-point margin with 13:52 in the game.

UNO missed a chance to get back on top with its next possession. Jim Jostes, behind the Southern Colorado seconddary, had a Bangtson pass slip through his hands.

A Golwitzer punt left Southern Colorado deep in their own territory, on the 3-yard line. UNO helped the Indians out of the hole with a facemask penalty, giving Southern Colorado a first down on the 20.

From there the Indians easily moved against a tired UNO defense. Benny Williams completed the 97-yard march by going over from the two, for a 32-21 lead.

UNO came back when Glen Printers fumbled a Golwitzer punt on the Indian 17-yard line. Ted Sledge made the recovery for UNO. Bangtson scored five plays later from one yard out, narrowing the deficit against UNO, 32-28.

The Mavericks' attempt for an onside kick failed and Southern Colorado ran out the final two-and-a-half minutes.

Caniglia said after the game, "We just had too many penalties." He pointed out that the facemask call against UNO was a "key penalty," moving the Indians out from their five.

"When you're beaten by only four points any one play can determine the outcome," said Caniglia.

Southern Colorado boosted its record to 3-4, the loss dipped UNO to 4-2-1 for the season.

Runners Finish Fourth

The Maverick cross-country team traveled to LeMars, Ia., this past weekend to participate in the Westmar College Cross-Country Invitational.

It was the first trip to Westmar for the Maverick squad that finished fourth in the eight-team field.

An anticipated duel between Concordia, South Dakota, and UNO never materialized as the host school, Westmar, surprised the field by placing their first five runners in the top eight.

The Westmar Eagles scored 30 points to Concordia's 65. The University of South Dakota edged the Mavericks for third place 85-86, while Nebraska Wesleyan finished fifth with 88 points. Augustana finished sixth (163 points), followed by Dordt College (207 points) and Wayne State (214) points.

The meet was held under ideal conditions over the flat five-mile course at the LeMars Country Club.

Dan Cloeter, Concordia's outstanding distance runner, was the meet's individual winner as he toured the course in 24 minutes, 09 seconds. Nebraska Wesleyan's Cliff Kart-hausen was second (24:50) followed by Dave Cloeter, Dan's younger brother, (25:11). Westmar's Clay Price led the Eagles' sweep of the next five places. Price's time was 25 minutes, 13 seconds.

UNO's top runner was sophomore Jack Schroer who finished eleventh in the 53-man field. Schroer's time was 25:37.

Other Maverick finishers were Tom Mahr, thirteenth, (25:52); Lance Herold, (26:25); Bill Melton (26:32); Bob Garcia, (26:50); and Greg Rosenbaum, (27:36). Freshman Erwin Clark also started for the Mavericks but failed to finish due to a fall after the second mile.

All UNO finishers ran their best five miles of the season as far as time was concerned.

Head coach Lloyd Cardwell said after the meet, "All our runners ran the fastest they have run all year; it's just that the other teams also improved as much as we did." Cardwell was also pleased to see freshman Bob Garcia back in action after a month layoff.

Next week the Mavericks play host to Nebraska Wesleyan at Elmwood Park.

Pikes May Take It

With only one game remaining on the schedule, it appears that the Pikes will wind up the champion in this unique form of football. The Pikes are currently undefeated (6-0) and play the third place Bookworms (3-2) this Thursday evening. The second place Theta Chi (5-1) battles with the last place Sig Eps (0-5). Should the Pikes lose and Theta Chi win a tie would result. No plans for a playoff have been made as yet.
